Tucson, AZ (September 9, 2005) – Dan Reid, veteran color management consultant, trainer, and technical writer announces the debut of RPimaging.com, a unique website offering unprecedented technical support services and resources including WebEx™ interactive support, informative "How to" guides on color management processes, a searchable online database of technical documents, articles, presentations and an online store.

RPimaging's online store makes it easy to select products by industry and by problem. Detailed "best practices" documents are available for many of the leading proofing and imaging products. "After consulting our customers we have put together a unique website that better serves our existing and future customers", states Dan Reid, owner and President of RPimaging.

WebEx™ technical interactive support is a cost effective training option for those who desire quick training but need more guidance than what is typically available through email or telephone support. Using WebEx™, technicians can control your computer using standard web browsers and broadband internet connections for both Mac and PCs without any special software required. The system allows files to be exchanged and even supports video chat if needed. Katherine Filice, Principal of CA based design firm, Articulate Solutions remarks, "I was impressed with idea of remote support and training. There have been countless times in the past that I have needed "hands on" help while on a tight project deadline – especially with color management issues."

"The idea of having custom ICC profiles developed by an expert such as Dan Reid is a great opportunity. Our company, like many in the design industry, struggles to keep abreast of this technology and having Dan on our team ensures our color management success. This service, combined with the new FAQ search system on the RPimaging website is like having 24 hour access to our own private consultant," continued Filice.

For those who prefer to source their own answers, RPimaging's searchable database is like a gold mine. Frank Windgassen, digital prepress consultant and former prepress manager of Macy's West explains, "The FAQ search engine makes it much easier to find answers to common questions. If the answer is unavailable the user may post the question and receive a reply from Mr. Reid for free!"

Meet Mr. Reid during Print '05 at the Color Management Group booth #8633 Sunday – Wednesday or attend his scheduled presentations on Hexachrome and expanded gamut printing at the GretagMacbeth booth #6319 Monday – Wednesday at 10:30am. Reprints of Dan's recent articles on Hexachrome from Digital Output magazine will be distributed at Print '05.
